84 (SPLIT A) For the millions of retired Americans and those nearing retirement the Social Security system is fiscally strong. But for younger workers, the Social Security system has serious problems that will grow worse with time. If we don't take steps to fix Social Security, the entire system will be bankrupt by 2042, and the only solutions would be dramatically higher taxes, massive new borrowing, or severe cuts in Social Security benefits..... 31 31 12 24 2 62 36

85 (SPLIT B) For younger workers, the Social Security system has serious problems that will grow worse with time. If we don't take steps to fix Social Security, the entire system will be exhausted and bankrupt by the year 2042, when today's young workers are retiring, and the only solutions would be dramatically higher taxes, massive new borrowing, or sudden and severe cuts in Social Security benefits or other government programs..... 32 28 13 25 2 60 38

86 For every American who is 55 or older, the Social Security system will not change in any way, but we have the responsibility to strengthen Social Security for younger workers. The best way to reach that goal is through voluntary personal retirement accounts. Q.103 Let me describe some things that have happened with President Bush and the administration over the last few years. I'm going to read the list and then ask you some questions. Here is the list:

They refused to discuss war costs, but the bill is now over 200 billion dollars.

They said Iraqi oil would pay for rebuilding Iraq, but U.S. taxpayers now have the 20 billion dollar bill.

The prescription drug benefit cost four times what they said, and they silenced government experts who knew.

They've run up record deficits, hiding the war and privatization costs off budget.

His Social Security plan adds 2 trillion dollars to the deficit.

The president invaded Iraq because of weapons of mass destruction that were not there.
