Now I'd like to read you a pair of statements about what Democrats and Republicans believe. After I read both statements please tell me which statement comes closer to your own views, even if neither is exactly right.

The Democrats most important principle is increasing opportunity and community. They think that America is stronger when we invest in people, reward hard work and build a stronger middle class. A good community creates greater security in health care and retirement. Their goal is a rising prosperity for all, not just the few. They deplore the greed and big special interests that act at the expense of the public. We are respected because of our military, but also because of our commitment to the American dream.

The Republicans' most important principle is self sufficiency. They think America is stronger when we promote personal responsibility and strong family values based on morality and faith. Government should get off people's backs so they are free to make their own choices. Taxes should be kept low so that businesses can succeed and America can prosper. We are respected in the world because we built a strong military and do what needs to be done to protect our freedom.

Every year we put off fixing the problem, the more our children and grandchildren will have to pay.
