Q.61 Now, let me read you a statement from a Democratic candidate about Iraq. After the statement please tell me whether this would make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Democratic candidate.

The Bush administration has no plan for success in Iraq and Democrats believe that 2006 must be a turning point. Various Democrats are offering serious ideas for consideration. Some have proposed setting a timetable for redeploying U.S. troops to other regions, while others have suggested setting a timetable for Iraqis to take over greater responsibility. The important thing is for the U.S. to adopt a plan for success in Iraq in 2006.

Q.62 (SPLIT C) Now, let me read you a statement from a Republican candidate about Iraq. After the statement please tell me whether this would make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Republican candidate.

We cannot pull out of Iraq until we have achieved victory and created a secure Iraq. Withdrawing now would put America at greater risk of a terrorist attack and would send a terrible message to both our troops and the terrorists. As Iraqi forces gain experience we will be able to decrease our troop levels in Iraq, but our decisions to reduce troop levels will be driven by military commanders in Iraq, not by artificial timetables from politicians in Washington.

Would this make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Republican candidate.

Q.63 (SPLIT D) Now, let me read you a statement from a Republican candidate about Iraq. After the statement please tell me whether this would make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Republican candidate.

We remain committed to the success of the mission in Iraq. While U.S. led coalition forces are still needed, the Iraqi security forces are showing significant growth and improvement. Following elections later this month and the formation of a new, democratic government, Iraqis will begin to take more responsibility for their country's security and the U.S. will be able to start reducing troop levels in Iraq.
