Q.75 I'm going to read you some statements from four Democratic candidates for President. After hearing all of the statements, please tell me which candidate you would be most likely to support.

Candidate Johnson says it is time we take care of our problems at home. Bush's tax cuts for the wealthy and the Iraq war have hurt our country. 3 million jobs lost. Skyrocketing health care costs. Cuts in education and veterans benefits. We must repeal Bush's tax cuts. Before building schools and hospitals in Baghdad, we should spend at least as much to improve schools and hospitals at home and create jobs for workers.

Candidate Miller says I am committed to fighting the war on terrorism and supported overthrowing Saddam Hussein, and we cannot pull out now. But we must abandon Bush's go-it-alone policy and work with our allies so they provide more forces and bear more of the cost. We must preserve the middle class tax cuts, close the record budget deficits, and expand trade to improve relations with other countries and help the US economy.

Candidate Jones says we need a government that stands up for the people, not the corporations. We should abolish corporate loopholes and Bush's tax cuts for the wealthiest one percent. We should rein in health care costs and the pharmaceutical companies. My agenda will be expanding jobs, cutting middle class taxes, and protecting pensions and Social Security.

Candidate Smith says our country's strength is in our diversity, but the Bush administration promotes intolerance. They have tried to repeal affirmative action, fought against gay civil unions, violated our rights to privacy, and vowed to take away a woman's right to choose. We need a president who promotes tolerance, our diversity and protects our rights.

After hearing all these statements, which candidate would you be most likely to support?
